Notes for Contributors

The Taiwanese Journal of Sociology (TJS) (ISSN 1011-2219) is published semi-annually in June and December by the Taiwanese Sociological Association. TJS publishes original works in sociology and related areas and reviews on books or other forms of publications published during the most recent years in Taiwan or elsewhere. Research articles, research issues, research notes, and reviews are all welcome.

I. Types of Paper

TJS classifies papers into four types and sets the word limits for different types of papers.

1. Research Articles: Original research works of interest to the discipline in general (10,000 word limit).
2. Research Notes: Preliminary research results with potential to build specific theoretical issues and newly developed concepts (5,000 word limit).
3. Research Issues: Review Articles, and Critical Reviews: A comprehensive and systematic discussion on issues and reviews on newly developed special topics (5,000 word limit).

II. Manuscript Format

1. Manuscripts should be submitted in MS Word or other compatible software with numbered pages, and a cover sheet.
2. Cover sheet should include the topic of the paper, the type of paper, the number of words, the name of the author, and his/her affiliated institution and title, address and telephone number, e-mail address, disclosure of generative AI use (see the Sample Disclosure Statement on the Use of Generative AI Tools), acknowledgements, and other relevant information.
3. Manuscripts must include the following: cover sheet, abstract in English (200 word limit), key words in English (5 term limit), abstract in Chinese (500 word limit), key words in Chinese (5 term limit), full text, appendices and references.

III. All manuscripts are evaluated by anonymous reviewers. The manuscript should prepared in accordance with the rules of good scientific practice and those who violates the ethical standards will be banned from submitting for two years.

IV. Use of Generative AI Tools

1. Generative AI tools do not qualify as authors under academic or legal standards and must not be listed as authors or co-authors of a manuscript. AI-generated conversational content must not be cited or included in the reference list.

2. Disclosure is not required when AI tools are used solely for minor spelling corrections, basic grammar checks, or proofreading for formatting and readability.

3. Authors must disclose any AI-generated content included in their submissions. If any part of a submission contains AI-generated content, including text, images, or translations, authors must specify which tools were used, how they were used, and the reasons for their use. This information will enable the editorial team and reviewers to make informed publication decisions. If the Journal identifies undisclosed use of generative AI tools in a submission, appropriate corrective action will be taken.

4. Authors bear full and ultimate responsibility for the accuracy and authenticity of all data and references in their manuscripts. If the use of AI tools to fabricate citations or data, or any form of plagiarism or other academic misconduct, is substantiated, the Journal will take action in accordance with these submission guidelines, including outright rejection of the manuscript or retraction of a published article.

V. If published, each contributor will receive the PDF digital file of the article as well as five copies of the journal. And in accordance with the request, the contributor will receive additional 50 off-prints of the article.
